

American people are increasingly turning to public libraries for help in finding jobs. The American Library Association reports that the number of people using library career services has increased by 117,000 in the last year. This is a significant increase, especially in light of the fact that the unemployment rate is still high. Public libraries are becoming an important part of the career services infrastructure.

Leverage Public Libraries' Career Services Infrastructure

According to the Georgetown University Center for Retirement Initiatives, public libraries are becoming an important part of the career services infrastructure. The center reports that the number of people using library career services has increased by 117,000 in the last year. This is a significant increase, especially in light of the fact that the unemployment rate is still high. Public libraries are becoming an important part of the career services infrastructure.

■ REACH: accessible, cost-effective, and available to all. The American Job Center is a key component of the career services infrastructure. The center provides a wide range of services, including job training, job placement, and career counseling. The center is available to all people, regardless of their income or education level. The center is also accessible to people with disabilities. The center is a key component of the career services infrastructure.

■

